6 things to know about consent

1

It must be a genuine choice, freely given and a positive opt-in. Don't use pre-ticked boxes – you can't opt people in by default.

Consent should be clear and concise. Be specific on how the personal information will be used.

2

4

Parental consent is needed for children under 13 years old for processing that requires payments.

3

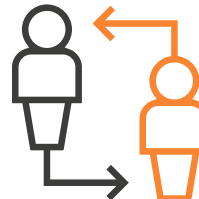

You don't always need consent. Other legal bases include processing for 'compatible' purposes, contractual or legal obligations.

5

Explicit consent is needed for special category personal information, e.g. health, race or genetic data

6

Make it simple for people to withdraw consent. Processing shouldn't be a precondition of service.
